

You are here : Home > River > Hydrology > Hydrology of the Athabasca Oil Sands Region > Ells River

RAMPRIVERPEOPLERESOURCESENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT

Ells River Hydrological Profile

The Ells River originates in the southeast slopes of the Birch Mountains at an elevation of approximately 730 m. The Ells River descends to an elevation of approximately 230 m, and meanders through the boggy landscape of the lower reaches before flowing into the Athabasca River from the west. Seasonal flows have been recorded by RAMP at station S14, Ells River above Joslyn Creek.

Online Hydrographs

View online hydrographs of the Ells River in the Interactive Features section.

Next page: Firebag River Hydrological Profile ►

Website Terms Of Use